How to set scotts broadcast spreader

For fertilizer spreaders the numbers usually represent the amount of fertilizer that is to be applied over a specific square feet of land. On spreaders you can find numbers such as 5, 5 and a half or 10 and a half. What setting should I use on Scotts Edgeguard for grass seed? When applying grass seed for a new lawn, or repairing bare spots, set the orange dial to 13. For overseeding applications, set the dial to 7 1/2. Using your Edgeguard Mini broadcast spreader correctly will ensure accurate, even coverage and reduce wasting costly seed. Is Scotts Edgeguard a rotary or drop spreader? Drop Spreader Up to 4,000 sq. ft. What do the settings on a spreader mean? A spreader setting is the rate in which you apply product to your lawn. Each Jonathan Green product has recommended rates of application and coverage based on bag size. In general, the smaller you set your spreader setting the smaller the hole and the slower the material releases from the hopper. What are the numbers on Scotts Turf Builder? The fertilizer analysis is 28-0-3 or 28 percent nitrogen, no phosphorous, and 3 percent potassium. Scotts Turf Builder with Summer Guard not only provides insect protection for a lawn but also helps strengthen turf against heat and drought. What is the setting for Scotts speedy green 3000? If this is what you meant, or those two spreaders are compatible with settings, you can use setting 2 3/4 for putting out 1.15 lbs per 1000 sq/ft, 5 1/4 for 2.3lbs per 1000 sq/ft, or 9 for putting out 4.6 lbs per 1000 sq/ft. What is Scotts EdgeGuard? EdgeGuard blocks off the right side of the spreader pattern to prevent product from spreading onto non-lawns areas. What should I set the spreader to for grass seed? With a handheld broadcast spreader, Scotts recommends a setting of 4 when overseeding or seeding a new lawn but suggests that the sower make two perpendicular passes for new areas. For drop spreaders, use a setting of 8 1/2 for overseeding and a bare-lawn setting of 12 1/2. To determine the settings of your spreader, select the brand, then the model and finally the product you want to use. Full rate (1 Pass) Half rate (2 Pass) If your spreader is not listed here, you can determine which setting to use by conducting this simple test: Read all directions and precautions on the bag. Weigh out enough of the fertilizer to cover 100 m2 and put it in the spreader. (Bathroom scales will help you do this. Set your spreader on a low setting. (Usually one quarter of the way open is a good starting point.) Spread the material you put in the spreader over 100 m2 (10 m x 10 m) [1076 sq. ft. (33 ft x 33 ft)]. 5. Ideally the product will run out when you get to the end of the 100 m2 area. If you have a little left over, increase the setting slightly. If you don't have enough to cover the full 100 m2, reduce the setting slightly. Write the setting and product name on a piece of tape and apply to the spreader for future reference. We recommend that spreaders be re-calibrated periodically. Using the Scotts EdgeGuard mini spreader properly allows you to provide even coverage of fertilizer and herbicide or grass seed across your lawn, saving you time over manually spreading the items. This spreader includes a special feature: the ability to block the flow of granules or seeds on one side to protect areas such as your driveway and flowerbeds. The spreader has an open hopper, making it simple to fill. It has a 5,000-square-foot capacity, meaning it can hold enough fertilizer to cover that area. Your fertilizer bag should be labeled with the square footage; 5,000 is a standard size in many fertilizer brands. If your yard isn't that big, pour in a small amount, such as one-third of the bag. You can always add more later by pouring the granules directly into the top of the hopper. A dial on the back of the spreader lets you set the proper application rate, which is normally located on the back of the fertilizer bag. Not all fertilizer lists this particular spreader model, so use any reference to Scotts broadcast/rotary spreaders. If you're using a Scotts brand fertilizer, there's also an online spreader setting tool to help you find the correct number for the dial. Some fertilizer brands also include a Scotts EdgeGuard Mini Spreader settings chart on their application instruction page. To begin the application process, start pushing the spreader in front of you at a steady pace and pull the trigger under your right hand. Hold it down as you spread; when you release it, it stops the flow of fertilizer. To get a feel for how it works, engage the trigger and walk at a steady pace in a straight line, watching where the fertilizer lands. The edge guard sets this spreader apart from many others. Instead of needing to cover your flowerbed or sweep your driveway after spreading, make your passes by these areas so that the right side of the spreader faces them. Engage the guard by moving the switch on the rear of the spreader, located along the bottom panel. Flip it back to the left to remove the guard when you're on open lawn. Keep in mind that the edge guard setting always blocks the right side, so you may have to adjust your walking pattern to accommodate this. The EdgeGuard spreader releases granules up to 3 feet on either side of the device, so when you turn, leave space between your pass rows to ensure even coverage and to keep from spreading too much fertilizer in one area. Scotts suggests spacing your parallel paths several feet apart, as the total span of the spreader's reach is around 5 feet. When you turn at the end of a pass row, push the spreader a few feet from the previous path and turn it for a parallel row headed in the other direction. This overlaps the spread slightly so the area in between the pass rows gets the same coverage as the areas right beside the spreader. For best results, pay attention to where the particles land on any given pass. On a windy day or with lightweight seeds, the material you're spreading may travel farther than expected. Likewise, heavy particles may not travel as far as lightweight particles.
